

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE--Landlord.com Announces Launching of Newly Re-designed Website.

San Jose, CA, April 23, 2007 – Landlord.com today announced the launch of its newly re-designed web site, which is an information and service portal for the millions of on-line landlords across the United States. Originally launched for the first time in 1998, having hosted over 7 million visitors, Landlord.com continues to take the best of web technology and information and offer it at one central location, for all landlords who want to save time and money.

Landlords who come to Landlord.com have been finding real solutions to every day landlording needs when managing their rental properties, with online tenant credit access, interactive lease forms, up to date legal rights resources (for all 50 states) and 15 other valuable services. With how to articles, forms and real estate related web sites being added almost every day, including an online (free) monthly newsletter of rental and apartment management tips, the website continues to be the Internet's leading resource for small and big landlords alike.

William C. Moore, CEO & President stated, "Our goal continues to be the best landlord resource center and information portal on the net. The depth of knowledge and resources at Landlord.com is simple, concise and offers every landlord some valuable information or service." Mr. Moore further stated, "We listened to what our visitors and members had to say about improving our web site. Our newly redesigned web-site allows for easier navigation and search functions, and most members and visitors can find what they want in less than 3 clicks.

Our advertisers and sponsors are very excited about these improvements and how Landlord.com continues to be a cost effective advertising channel reaching millions of on-line landlords, property managers and real estate professionals, says William Moore. Our banner ads and newsletter sponsorship campaigns have been very successful for our advertisers (see below for advertising contact information).

About Landlord.com – created in 1995, Landlord.com is the leader in providing the highest quality informational and resource portal for landlords from across the United States and Canada. Their proven track record of over 100,000 satisfied members speaks pointedly of their continued success.
